

capacity. Will it sell at least as much alumina to third parties as Reynolds did, or will it use more of the alumina in its own aluminum smelter? To the extent that the alumina is used internally, will it simply substitute for third-party alumina that the owner previously purchased on the open market, or will it be used to expand aluminum production? The answers to such questions are buyer-specific, and could dramatically affect the future competitive dynamics of the aluminum industry.

For the above reasons, we once again urge the United States to allow some form of public comment on the proposed Final Judgment after buyers are found for the divested assets, even if the comment period is relatively brief. This is an industry with huge barriers to entry, relatively few large players, highly inelastic demand, and a history of antitrust problems. We cannot afford to tip the scales in an anticompetitive direction by allowing Alcoa to find weak or otherwise inappropriate buyers for the assets it is being asked to divest. A public explanation of the Government's reasons for approving specific buyers and a brief public comment on the buyers will help us avoid this result.

Sincerely,
Albert Foer,

Ms. Janet Reno, Attorney General, The Department of Justice, Constitution Avenue at 10th Street, NW, Washington, DC 20530.

Dear Ms. Reno: One wonders why the federal government will permit the Aluminum Company of America (ALCOA) to take over Reynolds Metals Company (REYNOLDS).

On May 15, 1911, the Supreme Court dissolved Standard Oil Company.

The 13-year-old lawsuit against AT&T by the Justice Department was settled on January 8, 1982.

Now, the Justice Department is trying to break-up Microsoft Corporation.

If the above mentioned companies were and are monopolies, why isn't ALCOA included in that category, since it will become the world's largest aluminum producer? Where is the competition in the aluminum industry in the United States.

Sincerely,
Charles A. Stille.
